A WORKSHOP FOR PARENTS: HOW TO GUIDE YOUR CHILD THROUGH THE COLLEGE & EARLY CAREER PROCESS

-- Know yourself, navigate with clarity & make choices in alignment with your internal compass --

WHO

Recent college grads (2015-2020) seeking clarity about life planning beyond their current career situation. Clients pondering career path fit and seeking tools to make that a reality. Regardless of your education, degree, current employment (or lack thereof), you owe it to your future self to find the best path for you, as soon as possible.

WHERE

This year's workshop will be held via Zoom. After participants have successfully completed registration, the workshop zoom link will be provided via email.

WHY

Navigating careers can be challenging, even stressful. Even before the pandemic. Join us to gain insights into your authentic self, which will enable you to navigate life with greater clarity and confidence during these challenging times.

DELIVERABLES

Assessment tools, interactive exercises, clarity about your unique internal compass, practical application of the decision making model, renewed self-confidence, permission to look at options in alignment with who you are, excitement for the future and all its possibilities, goals for your future, and tips to succeed despite an ongoing pandemic.

INVESTMENT

$325 if registered prior to 5/14. Price after 5/17 increases to $375. Participants are required to purchase "Now What?" By Nicholas Lore prior to the workshop.

SIGN UP

There are several easy ways to register. Either visit www.watervillepartners.com, scan our QR code, or email Kay (kay@watervillepartners.com) for further information. Spots are secured once payment is received and confirmation is provided. Payment accepted through QuickPay, Zelle, or Apple Pay. Refunds are provided only when a waitlisted participant is available to fill your spot. Unable to make these dates? Gather a group of friends and contact Kay to explore a custom workshop. Individual coaching available under separate agreement and rates.
